

Diploma thesis „Relevance of the Regional Development Agencies in the Relation to the Regional Development” in the forepart puts regional development agencies to the context of the theoretic frameworks, which works with during their analysis. It is possible to classify the regional development agencies as significant actors in the area of regional development. The goal of this diploma thesis is to notify the importance of the regional development agencies using quantification of inputs and outputs of their activities to sort the agencies into different categories. The categorization of the regional development agencies will form conditions for partial comparison and evaluation of operation of these agencies.