

This thesis „Formation and implementation of communal policies in border regions, the particular example of a town Moravská Třebová“ has been focusing on processes of formation of development conceptions in a small domicile on the border of Bohemia and Moravia which were affected by economic crisis in key fields of industry of local production at the end of 20th century. It was necessary to introduce processes of strategic planning and to set goals and directions to emphasise the economic situation and development of basis of society, f. e. social issues and a public life in general. The thesis follows four different kinds of policy – overall strategic conception, strategy of economic development, plan for development of social service and important investment project. In final chapters there is an evaluation of autonomy role within forming of this particular policy and ability of town management to implement them accordingly.