

The diploma thesis 'HZDS in the process of the division of CSFR – its status, influence, position and movement' deals with the process of the division of CSFR which is seen by the view of position and movements of the Slovak political party – The Movement for Democratic Slovakia. The thesis is divided into three chapters. The first one is concentrated on the reopening of the czech-slovak question after the communistic totalitarian system collapse in November in 1989, free elections taking place in June in 1990 and a consequential two-year negotiation among the Czech and Slovak political negotiants. The other chapter is concerned with the pre-elect position of HZDS in the topic of the state law ordering for elections in 1992, then it is concentrated on the influence of elections in the czech-slovak question and the consequential negotiations among the negotiants of ODS and HZDS that were on the highest positions. These negotiations led to the „resolution” of the czech-slovak question. This chapter is finished with the functions of the main representatives of HZDS in the process of the division of CSFR. It was described in the last but one section what position HZDS had in this process – if it was the main participant of the division. The final chapter is focused on the polemics of the topic of referendum which was never realized, even though the main political participants had promised it.
