

This thesis aims mainly to seniors (people older than 65 years), but also to elderly seniors (people older than 80 years old) in particular regions of the Czech Republic in the 21st century. The beginning of the thesis dissertates about demographic aging, whose cause is amounts and placement of seniors in population and its consequences show in singles regions different. The main target of this thesis is providing analysis about placement of seniors in the Czech Republic, setting relative young and old regions and giving reasons for causes of current and future situation. In the end, there is talked about social services focused on seniors and comparison of its availability.