

The topic of this graduation thesis is a description and evaluation of the role change of a Television News journalist with the transition to the tape-less technology production. This work further focuses on eventual benefits and diversification of new journalistic techniques for both a journalist and a user, and analyses new possibilities connected with server and network technology usage. At the end of this graduation thesis there are mentioned some possible expectations in trends of Television News production.