

The objective of presented Bachelor Nurse Study was to analyse an importance of play specialists position and to identify their role at children department during hospital admission. This work described differences that might be typical for each childhood period and potential play options. Additive objective of this work was to identify a broad spectrum of childhood Leeds and to recognize potential risk factors for some adverse consequences progress during admission.

An empirical part of this research was based on a quantitative analysis of medical orderly attitude to positions of play specialists. A study group of investigated subjects (i.e. medical orderly) was resulted from medical orderly using inclusion criteria taken from 2 Czech hospitals: Faculty Hospital Prague and Faculty Hospital Hradec Králové.