People on the fringe of society and possibilities of their integration

This diploma thesis deals with youth at risk and with various institutions and efforts that try to integrate them into society. The centre of attention is institution for youth at risk in Brno where I worked. Therefore, on the basis of my experience, I would like to find out if those young people consider this institution efficient. Furthermore, there is a theoretical background, which describes and characterizes youth at risk and all the main factors which can influence their development in a negative way. An output of this diploma thesis represents two interviews, which proved that the institution is efficient, useful and able to help to young people with integration into society.
