

Abstract

This thesis deals with social enterprise in the Czech Republic and its state aid. It focuses on the description of state aid decisions, affecting the operation of social enterprises in the Czech Republic. Briefly describes the characters of the civil sector organizations and symbols of social enterprises, including their differences, and identifies other possible legal forms for social enterprises. Based on the selected documents are in the thesis specification of groups of disadvantaged people in the labor market. The research work was part of the method of semi-structured interviews with selected social entrepreneurs and the results of qualitative research contribute to the fulfillment of the objectives of thesis. The conclusion summarizes the various findings.