

The diploma thesis considered to research problem new way of financing of social services from public resources as a source of financial uncertainty of social services providers. The thesis is a case study of the district of administration of municipality with extended competency Jindřichův Hradec and also the results are for this territory only. Most of the dates have been gathered with validity to 31.12.2009.

The goal of this study was to evaluate three years of validity of the Social services law in financing of social services sphere, whereas the partial goal of this study was to find out, which changes brought the new equal rights system of social services financing to providers of social services for seniors and handicapped persons. To receive the goals, five research questions have been determined. These questions have been managed to answered. To receive answers for these questions was used combination of qualitative and quantitative methods and primary and secondary dates.

Regarding the theoretical resources, the study is based on the public service theory, the nonprofit sector concept, the economic social services concept with their economy, and the autonomy of seniors and handicapped persons concept. Next is used the legislation of human rights sphere, non-governmental organizations, self administration units and legal regulations of social services sphere financing. The case study itself was divided among seven partial chapters. The study follows general characteristic of district of administration area, analysis of conceptual documents, offer of social services on the territory, exhaustion and exploitation of the care allowance, financial support from public budgets and also interviews given by social services providers have been analysed.

The study demonstrated, that the implementation of law was not completely successful, because although the ambit of this legislation is working still in the same way, the finance amount level is changing every year. The care allowance is used for services purchasing for less than 50%. Even if against the premises there was not outgoing of persons from accommodation facilities. Moreover the representatives of such accommodation facilities appreciate positively the care allowance introduction. Dates of The Ministry of Labour and Social Affairs shows for cutting of subsidies for accommodation facilities and, in contrary, for increasing of subsidies for ambulatory and fieldwork services. The fieldwork services are also supported by South Bohemian Region, which except this, supports only services of which is the Region founder. Some municipalities are also participate in financing – mostly Jindřichův Hradec Town. The providers see the problem mostly in financing of services sphere. The changes are evaluated by providers rather negatively – providers talk about financial uncertainty.
