

Author comes out from expert literature and stories of people who are dealing the problem of children living outside their biological family. He compares the Zone of Interior and the influence of the surroundings of institutional care with reserve family care.

Author learns the anticipated conclusionns which are consistent with expert literature and people, who grew up outside their biological family, either in establishment for institutional care or in a substitutional family. The substitutional family care is unambiguously more suitable for healthy child progress.