

This Master thesis deals with the question of teacher's skills, which are developed through everyday cooperation, experience exchanges and mutual reflections among teachers. The main topic is that part of further education of teachers that takes place inside schools. This thesis seeks an answer to the question of possibility of setting conditions in the school in such a way that the process of mutual education among colleagues is effective.