

Thesis deals with a history of the Warsaw pact from its establishing in the year 1955 to the year 1969, when a period of the alliance's shaping was finished. Work primary focuses on internal military and political evolvement, analyzed in context of events and evolvement in the Eastern block and simulteneously running Cold War. Work explains why the Warsaw pact was established, how the cooperation in the pact proceeded, what was the real importance of the alliance during the hot Cold War and Eastern Block crisis in the 50' and 60', how the approach of the soviet leadership to the Warsaw pact evolved and how this approach affected relations of soviet satellites and the Warsaw pact.