

The theme of this thesis is to analyze the organizational development group CKD in 1928-1938. The main subject of study are changes in the structure of organization management in the period. These changes were implemented for different reasons, which should better reflect the circumstances of the microeconomic situation of CKD. The thesis is divided into six chapters, the third to sixth chapter directly addresses the issue of routes.