

This rigorous thesis deals comprehensively with issues related to the community property. The rigorous thesis is divided into four parts. The first part outlines a historical development of the institute of community property in our territory from the time of ABGB. The second part deals with current issues of proprietary relationships between spouses. The third part deals with the issue of housing and the matter of regulation on the community property and the insolvency procedure. The last part of the thesis outlines a question of the proprietary relationships between spouses in the new prepared Civil Code.

The rigorous thesis was developed using legislation as at 1 January 2010, current judicature, professional expert articles and professional legal papers.