

This thesis attends to verbal forms present in the Prague collection of Cappadocian tablets and processes a grammar of these forms. The source of the material is the transliteration of the tablets published in ICK 3 and ICK 4. It contains both theoretical and practical section with a concordance of the forms and a few remarks on the transliteration of some of the forms in ICK 3 and ICK 4 as appendices.