The object of this work is action research and analysis of its results, which relate to the socio-pathological phenomena studied in two schools in areas with different populations. It is a school of Jan Werich in Prague 6, which represents the big city school facilities and school Libice nad Cidlinou representing rural schools in areas with low population. The theoretical section deals with the short characteristics examined social pathology in the research section is devoted to analysis of the results.