

This bachelor thesis includes an annotated translation from the Spanish language. The text was chosen from a Guide - book to Alicante. Three chapters from the part about the province of Alicante are translated. The opening part of the bachelor thesis consists of an analysis of the original text. A part of the annotation is dedicated to the possibilities of translation of proper nouns. The translation of proper nouns is fundamental to this bachelor thesis. The next part of the annotation foreshadows some translation solutions in the area of different textual levels. Supplementary texts are separated from the main text in this bachelor thesis. They are numbered in chronological sequence according to their notation in the original text as well as according to their placement behind the main translated text.
