

The work examines the work of the International Peasant Union, the so-called Green Internationale after the Second World War and its links to Green Internationale in the interwar period, from the perspective of political trials in the 1 half of the 50 years in Czechoslovakia, where one of these political trials is called a trial with an offshoot of Green Internationale.