

The aim of this thesis is the analysis of the influence of Slovak brotherhood and Hungarian guard on the international relations between the Slovak Republic and Hungary. Both the impact of activities of Slovak brotherhood and the Hungarian guard and the evolution of these organizations are under research. Thesis also focuses on theoretical definition of the extreme right and offers a brief overview of the historical development of Slovak-Hungarian relations, as well as of the phenomenon of the extreme right. Subsequently, the work addresses the development of Slovak brotherhood and Hungarian guard, which is followed by specific investigation of the activities of these organizations in two aspects. The first one is the membership to the extreme right; the latter consists of the relation to the issue of Slovak-Hungarian coexistence. Finally, this work analyses the organizations' position in the political system and their impact on the international relationship between Slovak republic and Hungary.
