

Summary

Bachelor thesis deals primarily with the problems of outdoor courses objectives, both in terms of course submitter, and organizations concerned with outdoor courses realization. The thesis consists of two complementary parts: theoretical and empirical.

The theoretical part is dedicated to explain the basic concepts of outdoor education, describe the process of selecting a suitable outdoor course and passed course evaluation. The aim of the empirical part is to evaluate the process of selecting targets for outdoor courses demanded by Czech organizations engaged in outdoor training education . Questionnaire survey and semi-structured interview techniques had been used to achieve the thesis goals.
