

This thesis is focused on the normalization between China and Vietnam after 1991, taking into account their interruption and development after mutual renewal after 1991. This bachelor thesis presents the joint development of Sino-Vietnamese relations since their beginnings to the year 1975. Subsequently, the paper clears the reasons for the interruption of relations between China and Vietnam. The goal of this thesis is to analyze the reasons and the pretexts of interruptions of Sino-Vietnamese relations during seventies and eighties of the 20th century and Sino-Vietnamese normalization after 1991. Thesis also evaluates the mutual development of Sino-Vietnamese relations since 1991 and analyses their ongoing disputes.