

The presented text deals with a process of Christianization with taking account of informative value of archaeology. Movable archaeological artifacts generally connected with Christianity are paid particular attention. These objects were divided into two groups: Group I - artifacts primarily linked to Christianity, Group II – artifacts with practical or decorative function carrying Christian theme. One category of objects was chosen from both the groups (Group I - hanging crosses, Group II – Strap end) and analysed. At the end a contribution towards knowledge of the process of Christianization is evaluated.
