The bachelor thesis is based on assumption that the Spanish verbs of movement differ semantically from their Czech equivalents. The parallel corpus proves this statement and works as the basic instrument for the numerical and semantic research of the equivalents. The meanings of the Spanish verbs are described consequently emphasizing the elements which cannot be found in the Czech language or which are different and can cause difficulties to a Czech native speaker.