

My diploma work called „Various aspects on a birth of mental disabled child“ ties together with my bachelor work, which I wrote at Evangelic Theological Faculty at Charles University. In this bachelor work I was interested in the basic rights of mental disabled people. I taught the topic of a right to live. The meaning of this question grows with the development of new biotechnology as an artificial insemination, an antenatal diagnostics, a miscarriage and a gene therapy. The other important question talks about the mother rights. These questions traditionally pronounce physicians, philosophers, theologians and sociologists of medicine. However special pedagogues should as well think about and participate in discussions about this topic. Special education comes to the new period with currently knowledges of not only human genome. That is why I target the bioethic sphere, different opinions and possibilities of special pedagogues' treating. In my diploma work, because bioethic sphere touch the special education. I come out from historical point of view, from attitudes formulated in our history and from society attitudes to disabled individuals. The work of special pedagogues in this area should focus at disabled people and their parents who decided to take care of the child and at people who are just deciding to take care of the child. The focal point of special pedagogues in this area is to acquaint the uninitiated people with these questions and the possibilities of care of mental disabled people. With everything I have said connect important aspect of respecting the opinions and wishes of concerned people.
