This thesis aims on design and implementation of a three-tier system for generating text documents from templates and supplied data. The system is going to be a part of the information system Munis developed by Triada. The thesis significantly extends the possibilities, provided by the component Aspose. Words by Aspose, Templates may contain expressions evaluated at time of data insertion, master-detail constructs of arbitrary level as well as conditionally shown text blocks.