

This thesis entitled -The role of management in human resources management and stimulation human resources in the hospital- is considering primarily in general management role and functions of the hospital and secondly by examining the empirical (questionnaire survey, of senior management in hospital Vinohrady). In the first part I will focus on explaining the specifics of human resource management in hospital and the hospital as a different type of organization. Here we find the basic organizational scheme of the hospital, it is structure and management. The second part deals with the survey will focus on the management of the Vinohrady hospital, staff satisfaction with the hospital management. The result of the first and second part would be to compare with the theoretical concepts applied in the Vinohrady hospital staff and a realistic view on the issue by the staff.