

Abstract

The author of this bachelor thesis describes young people's views on relationship, marriage and parenthood. The aim of this thesis is charts views and attitudes of nowadays young people to these parts of human life. The bachelor thesis has an theoretical part and experimental part.

There are analysed sociological studies and knowledge of the experts and compared behaviour of nowadays young people with previous generation in the theoretical part. The incoming trends in these matters are presumed.

For the experimental part there has been made a research among high school students. The results are compared with the evidences of the theoretical part. The changes in marriage and reproductive behaviour has been approved.

The bachelor thesis go towards awareness of views and attitudes of nowadays young people to relationships, matrimony and parenthood.