

ABSTRACT

This thesis focuses on juvenile delinquency that has long been the most watched and most discussed topics and problems our society.

At the beginning, the author explains the basic concepts. The next chapter explains the characteristics of Kriminology, deals with the development and structure of juvenile delinquency.

The main part of the thesis is related to the knowledge level causes and conditions of juvenile delinquency and their characteristic features. It is divided into Internal Criminogenic Factors and External Criminogenic Factors of causes and conditions and are described individually (eg. Family, school, leisure time). The last chapter is devoted to crime control where author individually explains ways to control crime.