

Abstract in English

The concise summary of literary information about bilirubin and its structure derivative ranarubin is the topic of this thesis. The experimental part is dedicated to investigation of some properties of this substances and their comparison. The rate of degradation and acid-base behaviour was monitored under the laboratory conditions using capillary zone electrophoresis. The results point to differences in their behaviour.