I dedicated in my thesis on the system of Spanish terminative verbal periphrases and at the same time to explore its potential equivalents in Czech. Because of the fact, that we move on the field of the character of verbal action, I found it necessary to make clear that we know, what does the term character of verbal action and terminativity mean.

In the theoretical part of my work I deal with each terminative periphrase, the division of them according to several types of terminativity, and I describe its characteristics. I also deal with the situation in Czech, I try to match possibilities of creating equivalents to these Spanish periphrases.

In the practical part, I tried to analyse chosen periphrases in monolingual corpus CREA, I also used another corpus programme AntConc to the analysis. Then I analysed the Czech equivalents of these periphrases using the parallel corpus InterCorp. I hope I managed to make a vision of the system of Spanish terminative verbal periphrases and of the possibilities of their translation to Czech.
