

Abstract

This Bachelor's thesis occupies with the processing of accepting and removing foreign language means of the Slovenian. It focuses on the aspects which influence the process of accepting and removing the language means. The aspects are for example the history and development of the language. This work researches the occurrence of the foreign words in the Slovenian press. An extra chapter is focused on the work with the language corpora.

Key words: Slovenian, language, foreign language elements