

Abstract

The Lambl's family was a part of the famous intellectual family in Bohemia in the second half of the 19th century. The Lambl's brothers were respected experts in their profession. František Sudimír became a highly educated economic officer, Karel Milan was a highly educated economic pedagogue, Vilém Dušan was a very famous doctor and Jan Baptista was a highly educated agricultural expert and at the same time he worked as a organizer of the economic school systém. Eight of the brothers and sisters lived to an adult age, four sisters (Marie, Barbora, Eliška, Anna) and four brothers. All the brothers got married and set up their own families, only one of the sisters – the youngest Ann, got married.

The brothers and sisters took a part in the Bohemia patriotic life (for example Vilém Dušan was politically active in 1848, he was in correspondence, apart from others, with Karel Havlíček). The sisters then were involved in the women's society mainly. All brothers and sister made up a compact group for the duration of seventy years. They kept the warmly family relationships and supported each other. The brothers and sisters have not lost contact during their adult age. The sisters helped their unmarried or widowed brothers and helped them with a household, and looked after them in places of their activities devotedly.

This dissertation describes a strategy between brothers and sisters and creates a picture of the concrete family life. Based on inheritance from Literary archive of The Museum of Czech Literature. For the research was used the family correspondence and also general personal documents. At the same time it is important to show the influence of the middle-class from the past. This was the most essential and also particular case to extend the present research work regarding the women's history, history of childhood, the girls' education for a practical life and also contrubution to the every day's research work of the history.
