

This dissertation is focused on the problem of employing people with medical handicap in the free labour market. In the seven chapters there is the organization and regulation of state policy of employment, in the situation of handicapped people after October 2004, in labour-law relations and in the service "support employment". The practical part includes data evaluation from the questionnaire for handicapped people.