

The paper deals with recent morphogenetic processes in the Geodynamic Observatory Pecný (GOPE) area and their influence on the evolution of landforms. Evaluation of their impact was based on selected geomorphological phenomena. Special attention is emphasized intense weathering, hillslope processes, erosion and antropogenic impact. Analysis of microclimatic conditions, humidity and temperature conditions of soil and ground water level in the area GOPE are also presented.