

Abstract

The subject of this thesis is the analysis of the legal regulation of mutual funds in the Czech Republic. The thesis aims to provide a complex view on the issue. The introductory chapters provide the historic background of mutual funds and demonstrate the legislative evolution of the legal concept and its definition in the Czech Republic. The analytical part is focused on the particular problems of each institution and suggests a possible solution. These chapters point to the complications around the real estate funds and the possible breach of one of the freedoms of the European law. The last chapters point out the ways of protecting the assets of the funds by the depository, as well, as the ways to recover the damages when suffered