

Summary

The aim of my bachelor's thesis titled "RAF members from Mělník region during the Second World War" is to describe the activity of Mělník natives in Royal Air Force. While this is the central point the thesis follows the subjects since they crossed the borders of Protectorate of Bohemia and Moravia, as well as their other journeys that led them either through Poland or France.

The beginning of the thesis provides rather general introduction focused on the outbreak of the Second World War, the activity of Czechoslovak aviators in Poland and France, and eventually depicts the establishment of Czechoslovak air squadrons in Britain. Each Mělník native is then further analyzed within individual chapters where I describe their life and war experiences.
