

Abstrakt

The main topic of the bachelor thesis is clarification of middle ages routes' studies, their usage and life along them in the period of 13th century-first half of 15th century (with the possibility of extending the period). The thesis is based on interdisciplinary approach applied to the example of Prague-Brno route using exclusively the "Haberská path" (including surrounding paths). A special attention is paid to revision of older opinions concerning this route. Searching, documentation and interpretation of the route's relicts in relation to nearby Middle Ages inhabited places is included in a special part, that is used as a reference sample.

communication, everyday life, path, road, later Middle Ages