Bachelor’s thesis is aimed to cultural and social life in Vsetin between 1918 and 1938. The first chapter describes historical and geographical facts and it interprets social, traffic and building development of the town. The following part shows relationship between town and the First Czechoslovak president T. G. Masaryk. The third chapter deals with a celebration of public holidays and other important days of the First Czechoslovak Republic. The penultimate chapter describes a theatre’s production, concerts, lectures, a foundation of museum and public library and it’s also focused on sport’s activities of the town. The last part explains state of education with accent on formation of high school. All of these individual topics should demonstrate overall character of the town before the World War II.
