

Abstract

The author of the thesis analyses philosophical and historical grounds of the principle of fair business transactions in the Czech law. In the other parts of the thesis the author analyses the notion of the principle of fair business transactions with respect to the actual case law of the Czech courts and compares the notions of good manners and principle of fair business transactions. The author also outlines some controversial decisions of the Czech courts in relation to principles of fair business transactions.