

Abstract

The thesis deals with the issue of legal regulation of compensation for damage caused by protected species of animals. It analyzes the most important legal sources relating to the protection of biodiversity and focuses on legal theory and practice of a highly interesting issue of legal status of animals. The thesis also clarifies alternative solutions for compensation for damages, including possible future legislation on this issue, and a brief comparison of the Czech legislation with the legislation of the Federal Republic of Germany.