

The topic of communication strategies in the workplace between superiors and subordinates attempts to offer contemporary practical findings from the area of focussed influence of the superior on subordinate employees through a communicative approach. In the theoretical part selected effective management methods are discussed. The research and practical parts demonstrate the influence of the selected method of communication of the superior with the subordinates and assess the practical findings which supplement the theoretical findings.