Abstract

Employee appraisal is one of the human resource management activities, meant to be effective means of control, regulation, and employee motivation. Appraisal of security forces officers is linked to differences between state service, and employment. This bachelor’s thesis presents compact overview of appraisal of Czech police officers and Czech fire brigade officers. By comparison of appraisal systems these two law-enforcement agencies, there can be determined fundamental similarities and differences.

Key words

Performance management, employee appraisal, appraisal of security forces officers, state service.