

ABSTRACT

The work deals with childlessness, specifically with the phenomenon of childfree – childless by choice. It is a theoretical overview of childfree in the Czech republic supplied with qualitative research among members of nokidding internet groups. It focuses on the description of childlessness and childfree. The point of the research is to find out what the members of childfree groups have in common, their opinions, what is filling their lives and if they are satisfied with it, how they plan their future, if they feel societal condemnation, how was their childhood and what led them to their decision.
