

The rigorous thesis deals with competitive reporting in the current business environment and the area of public administration. It focuses on the importance of protecting information and information systems in organizations from fraud and loss of important information. Analyzes the causes and the reasons for the abuse of information. Proposes a methodology for ensuring protection of classified information in a competitive atmosphere organization. The work is based on the protection of information in legal standards. The aim of the work is to establish preventive measures against fraud and loss of important information and determine the causes and circumstances of crime in the area of work with the information.

Keywords: competitive intelligence, information, information systems, protection of information