

Annotation

Title:	The personal assistance by children and by young people with autism defect
Author:	Lenka Martinová
Konsultant:	PhDr. Marina Luptáková
University:	Charles University in Prague
Fakulty:	Hussite Theological
Department:	Teaching
Field of study:	Bachelor study Social Pedagogy
Numer of pages:	62
Numer of supplements:	2
Year of publication:	2012

This bachelor thesis is interested in a personal assistance in the connection with children and young people who suffer from autism. The essence of autism is characterised here. The thesis is divided into the theoretical part focuses on the types of personal assistance and the term of personal assistant, his education, financial issues and employment. The historical development of the personal assistance in the Czech Republic is described here. I described various types of autism. I also explain the principles of the structural learning. The practical part defines the association APLA which helps people with autism. The history of APLA, priorities the activity in association, project, the administration and exploitation of the personal assistance of APLA Prague. The last part of the theoretical part consists also of the structural dialogue about the autism.