

Abstract

In the beginning of the thesis, I summarize the instruments used in spatial planning in the Czech legal system. These instruments contain Czech Building code . 183/2006 Sb. . I discuss how the public can join the process of creating these legal instruments. The first condition in joining these processes is logically for the public to be well informed. Throughout the entire thesis, I compare how the Czech public is informed with the Aarhus Convention. Then I compare how the Czech public is informed and how they manage to join the processes of creating the spatial planning legal instruments in real life.
