Abstract

Title: Case study of physiotherapy treatment of a patient with enteropathic arthritis.

Author: Michaela Stránská

Aim: Treatment proposal to the patient with enteropathic arthritis and the pursuance of the curative effect.

Methods and abstract: The literature search and the case study of this issue was proceeded within the practical experience in Rheumatology Institute in Prague from 9. 1. 2012 to 3. 2. 2012. The general part of the thesis is about rheumatology diseases, exactly enteropic arthritis. I described the patology, etiology and metods of their treatment. The special part of the thesis includes the case report of the patient with enteropic arthritis with main problem in the right shoulder and its therapy and pursuance of the curative effects.

Result: Enhance of the range of motion of the right shoulder and its power. Normalization of the muscle tone of right upper limb.

Key words: shoulder, arthritis, rheumatology, case report, physiotherapy.