

ABSTRAKT

|                              |   |
|------------------------------|---|
| Author:               | Martina Sýkorová  |
| Institution:          | Charles University in Prague, Medical faculty of HradecKrálové, Institute of social medicine, Department of nursing |
| Title of thesis:      | How does the profession on of nurse influence the qualityof her life  |
| Consultant:           | Jaroslava Pečenková   |
| Number of pages:      | 97  |
| Number of appendices: | 4   |
| Year of defense:      | 2012  |
| Key words:            | Quality of life, profession, profession of a nurse´s  |

The thesis deals with the professional influence at a private life of a nurse. In the opening part are described beliefs about the quality of life in general and factors which affect it. The following part contains social aspects of of nursing as a profession in the history, the beginning of Czech nursing education. There are also described working conditions, a nursing uniform formation. In the empiric part were set down goals and related appropriate hypothesis. Two questionnaires were made – for nurses and family members .The results were recorded into charts and graphs. The main task in the empiric part was to authenticate the correctness of the hypothesis and fulfilling the given goals. One of the main goals was to find out how the nursing carrer affects her personal life.