

The theme of the thesis is the law enforcement in accordance with Part Six of the OSŘ and its comparison with the legislation of civil law execution by Act No. 120/2001 Coll. The aim of this work is to describe the rules of enforcement by the OSŘ and the execution by the EŘ, define the basic differences between the two processes, reflect on the meaningfulness of this dual regulation, as well as the advantages and disadvantages of performance leadership decision one way or another. The work deals with the relationship between the two rules as lex generalis and lex specialis, and a description of significant differences between the modes of enforcement, as shown in both treatments.