

ANNOTATION

Elena Hotárová, CRISIS OF THE TRUST OF MANKIND IN GOD. Praha 2006

This thesis presents a contemporary problematic issue of the crisis of trust of modern man in relation to other human beings and God on the basis of psychological and theological aspects. The term trust as an expression of theological virtues is explained on the basis of biblical solutions and systematic theological reflection, which encompasses the view of the theologians.

Anthropological aspects are reflected in a closer look at the psychological aspect of trust and emotional wounds and also in a fundamental outline of the mechanism of the relationships between trust in man and trust in God. The author's part indicates some forms and concepts of inner healing of a Christian or a non-believer, of the original entity, which only finds its complete recovery in the profound relationships of trust.

Healing is presented as a process based on the interaction of God and human.
